

Agenda for Change

TPS members have said what they want to see from the new Government: but what are they likely to get? Come along to hear and discuss the DfT's take on what the profession thinks.

18:00, Thursday 10th September 2015

Godfrey Mitchell Theatre, Institution of Civil Engineers,
One Great George Street, London, SW1

The TPS spent a year consulting its members on what they thought the new Government's transport priorities should be. The resulting, wide-ranging Agenda for Change was released in June as a basis for engagement with decision makers in Government and elsewhere, starting with the Department for Transport.

You can find the Agenda for Change (main document and Executive Summary) on the TPS website at <http://www.tps.org.uk/main/news/id/0800>

This event will open with a summary of the Agenda by its lead author, Keith Buchan, and continue with the views of the DfT's John Dowie – Acting Director General for Roads and Local Transport. John will also introduce the DfT's plans for the current Parliament.

Following these presentations, TPS Chair John Dales will host what is bound to be a lively and thought-provoking debate. We'll be talking about how transport planning can and should change things for the better in the UK – so come to listen, learn and contribute.

TPS members unable to attend in person can get involved and put their questions live via this weblink: <https://ice-org.webex.com/ice-org/onstage/g.php?MTID=eaa82d7bec0e05bf9edc22b9cbf24655e>
